

BLENHEIM PALACE

Behind the Scenes of QUEEN CHARLOTTE

A Bridgerton Story and Bridgerton, Season 3

“Our own Bridgerton Story started with Queen Charlotte. It was great to be asked to be part of the Bridgerton Series 3, and as we loved working with the previous crew we jumped at the chance.”

Samantha Vaughan, Head of Commercial Development, Blenheim Palace

“There is always a balance of looking after priceless collections and allowing a large crew to come through the doors, moving or covering anything post-regency. Our Palace and Collections team were grateful to work with such a fantastic Location Team that understands how to work respectfully within a heritage property. All the interior scenes were shot at night, and the powerful lighting made the Palace look stunning on screen. The colours and collections of the staterooms are brought to life, you can see what the Palace would have been like in the time of King George and Queen Charlotte and how opulent and beautiful the Palace truly is.”

“It is always summer in the Ton, so our gardens suddenly became full of flowers and flowing dresses, we stood in the cold watching summer float by. Bridgerton continues to be extremely popular, and we even had Bridgerton Dresses on display.”
